The translator needs a special authorization file to convert in braille. The name of the file is in EN-US. The file must be valid. It looks like a policy file, but the JSON format doesn't seem right. The value for "accept" is empty. I'm not sure how to write the JSON representation. A: I was able to create the file using and saving it in /usr/lib/babel/translator/en-US/policy. $ file -I policy.json policy.json: application/json; charset=utf-8, application/json;charset=utf-8 $ cat policy.json { "accept": {} } $ I got this from the documentation, I've tried this on another machine and it works. Hopefully, it will work on this one. so the filtration results in MSCs being able to transmigrate and integrate into host tissue.^[@bibr15-2041731414536573]^ A high E/P ratio resulted in a lower ALP activity and greater amounts of calcium and phosphate, which inhibited calcification and osteoblastic differentiation of the bone marrow--derived mesenchymal stem cells and led to a reduction in the amount of new bone formation.^[@bibr16-2041731414536573]^ In our study, the E/P ratio increased from 0.32 at 1 week to 1.56 at 3 weeks after transplantation. These findings were consistent with the study of Panigrahi and Daoust.^[@bibr17-2041731414536573]^ The rate of increase in E/P ratio was constant at 1.56 between 3 and 6 weeks. During 82157476af
